

ecofabulous
sustainable. sexy. stuff.

Ecofabulous Event Planning

I love parties as much as the next girl, but the post-celebration aftermath isn't always so pretty (and I'm not talking about hangovers or the inevitable drama among guests).

Discarded leftovers and wilting floral arrangements remind me of how much energy (both our own and the planet's) goes into throwing these fabulous, yet fleeting fêtes. dvGreen, a sustainable event planning company, takes care of that green guilt and throws weddings, corporate retreats, bar-mitzvahs and cocktail parties with panache and a passion for the environment. Founder Danielle Venokur is a strong believer in celebrating the milestones in our lives while still honoring the planet, and dvGreen follows this philosophy for all its elegant and eclectic events. dvGreen takes a personalized approach to every event but routine eco-friendly party-throwing practices include sending tree-free invitations, choosing organic, local, and sustainable flowers, donating or composting the food leftovers (which are also organic and local, by the way), and purchasing carbon offsets to neutralize the entire event. Party on!